NO DECREASE OF HIGH FOOD PRICES

High Cost of Living Ever Higher—Housewife Can Profit by Watching Market Prices.

With the constantly soaring prices of all foodstuffs it behooves the wise consumer to keep a watchful eye on the market and buy in supplies when the best bargains are available. During the past year prices on nearly everything have advanced from twenty to fifty per cent and at present there is no prospect of any material decrease in the prices.

Flour and sugar have remained firm for the last few days, though the prices are considerably higher than they were some months ago. Canned goods are up, with an expected further increase of price.

A small item of the increased cost of living that remains in the background and yet adds its little bit, is the increased price of paper. All paper has gone up, and now bags in whole sale lots, where formerly they could be purchased for 95 cents. Things like that are hard on the dealers.

It is not only the ultimate consumer that must bear the burden of high prices these days.

Many merchants believe that as soon as the growers in the northern potato belt get their crops in, the present high prices will go down. Such opinions are mere conjectures, for everything depends on the weather conditions. The consensus of reports would indicate, however, that there will be a slight fall in the cost of spuds.

Lard has advanced two cents a pound. The market for this commodity is very strong.

Prices Paid Producers—Tons lots: Straw, $6.00; hay, $10.00; oats, 40¢; corn, 35¢; wheat, 90¢; barley, 85¢; rye, 80¢.

BIG BARLEY CROP THIS YEAR THROUGHOUT THE STATE

Wisconsin, already famous for its barley production has, according to conservative estimates, again outdone all former records.

We shall undoubtedly find that we have the largest crop of barley ever harvested in Wisconsin this year," said R. A. Moore, when recently interviewed at his office at the agricultural experiment station.

Due in part to a larger acreage, but even more to the favorable weather we have had and the high class seed which was sown.

It was reported to officials of the Agricultural Experiment association show the best average acre yields yet obtained. In the state, the state average is 35.195 bushels, and in 1915 27 bushels an acre. Based on the bright returns from this year's crop, authorities predict an acre yield average for 1916 of at least 40 bushels.

Wisconsin grows the eighth of the barley raised in the whole country and ranks third in the roll of states in total production.

According to Mr. Moore, fully 95 per cent of the seed used in growing the Badger barley crop is of the well known pedigree variety first grown at the agricultural experiment station and distributed by means of the co-operative association of grain growers affiliated with the station.

FORD CAR STOLEN HERE LAST NIGHT

Walter Kohler Offers Twenty-five Dollars Reward for Return of Missing Machine.

Police this morning on complaint of Walter R. Kohler, 338 North High street, scoured the city and outskirts for a Ford runabout taken from in front of the home between 6 and 7:15 o'clock last night. When the theft was reported upon discovery, the theory was held that perchance some of Mr. Kohler's friends had taken the machine for a joke, but when it was still missing this morning the theory was abandoned.

The machine bore license No. 676 star, a dealers' tag. Twenty-five dollars is offered by Mr. Kohler for the return of the car.

Chief of Police Champion again this morning reiterated his warning to Janesville automobile owners to guard against theft. Although this is the first occasion of a car being taken and remaining missing for over fifteen hours in the city this summer on numerous occasions car accessories and the left hand content which has been reported lost. The automobile stealing industry has reached such proportions that it seems advisable to look all cars, Chief Champion says.

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been married about eighteen months and have a baby nearly six months old. My husband was devoted to me until about six months ago, and then suddenly he changed. He hardly ever pays any attention to me and he is cross if any little thing goes wrong. He is nearly always at his mother's and she nearly always knows his affairs before I do. When my husband is at home he gets cross if the baby fusses, but will hardly ever take her up. All he does is try to find news of a former sweetheart. Do you suppose he still loves her and wants her back? Please advise me how to win my husband back to me. I love him dearly.

cannot go to his mother with this, as she does not treat me fairly, and I almost despise her. She never comes near me. Do you think it is my fault to take a new wife? She gets angry if I don't and so does my husband.

A BROKEN HEARTED WIFE.

Nothing can be gained by letting your husband see that you are unhappy—at least not now. Wait until you have conquered the situation a little and then talk to him about the matter. You are cool and reasonable and he will listen to you as he would not if you showed excitement and lack of control. I think the rule, "We have those who are good to us, applies to everyone. Be as good to him as you can and he will be good to you. When he talks of his former sweetheart simply tell him without flinching. You have the satisfaction of knowing that you did not cure enough about her. Tell him a little flattery might please your husband and would do no harm. Tell him how nice he looks.

HEALTH TALKS

THE UNDERLYING CAUSE.

We were delivering a lecture and getting along nicely, having passed the early stage of the lecture and the river of whatever that thing is that we speak in public, and the audience was apparently enjoying the discourse, when a sharp-eyed gentleman in the front row of the gallery rose, interrupting as follows: "You are all right, but did I understand you to say that anemia is always secondary to some underlying cause?"

"Yes, sir, that is what was said," we responded cheerfully. The circuit manager insists we must always pretend to welcome interruptions.

"And that such a condition as auto-intoxication may produce anemia?"

"And that the auto-intoxication often depends upon pities of one or another of the parts of the inner tube, as you call the alimentary canal?"

"Yes, sir, that is what we responded with greater effort. The man looked leavish.

"And that this ptosis or sagging of the face is often the result of faulty posture, a habit of slouching, bad physical training?"

"That was it, yes, sir." "And, if my interruption is not of assistance, may I ask just one more question? Does an unfavorable state of the blood, or anemia, in young persons favor a slouchy or relaxed posture?"

"Certainly does, yes, sir." "Thank you, Doctor," finished the man, sitting down. He gave a glance toward me and the underlying cause, and now I have succeeded. Thank you."

Right there everybody laughed. We didn't know why, but audiences will laugh at the most unexpected times.

MY FAVORITE LETTER.
I have had help with my work more than you will ever guess, so that I have never thought of any of them as my favorite until one came to me the other day. After my letters are sent, I store them away in a big trunk up stairs and when I am old and gray, when all your dear correspondents are grandmothers, then I am going to read in re-reading the letters which have come to me from friends whom I have never seen. But my favorite letter.

I won't feel hurt, all you dear friends who have written me such lovely letters, if I choose this letter as my favorite. I love every epistle that comes to me, from the first and proper ones to the last. I should like to call them all by their nicknames which I have given them.

This special favorite letter came from a little girl of only a few years, just able to compose and write. I wish that I might be able to read it.

HONOR THE LOWLY BEAN:
RISING IN PRICE AND ESTEEM

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 21.—The lowly bean was honored today when it was declared an official food of the State Board of Control.

The board has to feed all the state institution patients and beans once $2.50 a bushel, now sell for about $5.00. The state board wants to know what's in the bean and what could be used as a suitable substitute.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

Removing Grease From White Woods and Bleaching—Dissolve neap-ling tabespoon carbolic or lime in half of water. Dip in the goods and spread out to dry in hot sun, without wringing. When dry, repeat process. This will take out the worst case of mildew and many other stains. The lime must be well dissolved. Both may also be bleached by putting in a bag of soda, and when the sun shines and snow is on the ground, as snow becomes more rapidly than grass.

Cleaning White Fur—Take piece of flannel and, with some heated bran, rub the fur well; it will be quite renewed. The bran should be heated in a moderate oven. Outings with no husks is preferable to bran. Dried flour will also answer.

SANDWICHES
Rhubarb Recipe—For cold meat or sandwich filling—Two quarts rhubarb, two quarts sugar; when sugar is dissolved, boil ten minutes, add one-half pound raisins, one-half pound English walnuts; boil ten minutes more.

Apple or Onion Filling for Sandwiches—Peel and grind the two tart apples, wash with cold water, cut large cheese, four tablespoons thick cream. Season with salt and pepper. Use brown bread. Onion may be substituted for the apple. Spread on lettuce leaves between thin slices of white bread.

THE TABLE
Simple but Delicious Sauce—Take half cup butter and beat to a cream, beat in yolks of two eggs, add salt, teaspoon each of salt and pepper and half cup boiling water. Stir over boiling water until mixture thickens and tablespoon lemon juice and your sauce is ready. Keep in cool place and tightly covered when not in use.

Fruit Baskets—Take oranges, cut off a round piece from top of each (for the cover to the basket) about an inch from the top of the orange. Cut two little squares out of the cover, for places to lift off cover.

Scrape pulp from oranges and have prepared celery cut in tiny pieces; today grapes peeled, halves and pitted. Begin filling basket by putting in layer of orange pulp, another of celery, another of grapes and continue until space is filled, then add juice and sugar. If on a diet and not allowed sugar, it is very palatable without it. Serve on a plate on which small dolly has been placed.

Creamed Peach Pie—Peel, stone and slice ripe peaches. Lay out a piece of dough with puff paste and lay peaches in this. Sprinkle thickly with sugar and fit on an upper crust. Have ready, and cold, a cream sauce. Boil together five minutes and set aside to cool. When pie is done, carefully lift top crust and fill pie with cream sauce. Replace crust and set in cool place. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and eat very cold.

Orange Shortcake—One and one-half cups flour, one-half cup cornstarch, three tablespoons baking powder, one-half cup butter, one cup granulated sugar, two well-beaten eggs, one-half cup milk, one-half teaspoon vanilla, two stiffly beaten egg whites, six large oranges, one-half pint heavy cream whipped and sweetened. Cream the butter and sugar, adding sugar gradually, then add yolks and mix thoroughly. Sift together the flour, cornstarch and baking powder, and add this alternately with the milk to the creamed butter and sugar. Add flavoring and at the last fold in the beaten whites. Bake in two layers in buttered, paper-lined tins in moderate oven about fifteen minutes. Peel oranges, remove white skin, separate into sections and cut these quite fine, rejecting seeds. Place a layer of the orange pulp over cake, sprinkle with a little powdered sugar and place the other cake layer in the orange. Cover this with orange pulp and the whipped cream. Decorate with sections of oranges. Serve very cold.

Apple Repeni—Take six green peppers, cut stems and remove seeds. Put in cold water until following filling is ready. Filling: One-half pound hamburger, half loaf bread crumbs, four ounces cheese (grated), fat preferred; one sprig parsley, minced, half onion thinly sliced, one teaspoon salt, small pinch pepper. Mix well, then fry until partially cooked, add one cup tomato sauce and fry until well done. Fill peppers and fry in deep fat until a deep golden color.

TRAIN GREEN BAY INMATES IN MILITARY TACTICS NOW
Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 21.—Military training for the inmates of the Green Bay reformatory will be started within the next few days under the supervision of Captain M. D. Imhoff, of Milwaukee. When the system is started, military training will be a part of the daily routine work of the institution.

Capt. Imhoff made a trip of inspection through eastern institutions where the plan has been worked out and to gather new ideas for the system. He has outlined a program of gymnastics, drills, marches and similar exercises. Practices with guns will not be started for some time as the reformatory lacks the equipment. Regular United States infantry drill will be used.

POLITICS AND SOCIAL BETTERMENT.
I have a friend who is much disturbed because her husband takes an interest in politics and has been giving considerable time and money to the effort to elect decent, honest men to municipal office.

She regards every evening thus spent as time stolen from her. She is jealous of every cent contributed to the cause.

Now if she were a selfish, self-centered woman, that would be comprehensible, but she is not. She is a kind-hearted woman who gives generously of both time and money to charity and Church work. It grieves her much because she cannot interest her husband in these directions.

She Doesn't Realize They Are Both Working for the Same Ends.
She does not realize that they are both working for the same ends, each in his or her own way, and that in fighting against his devotion to politics she is indirectly fighting against social betterment.

"Politics is a dirty game," she says, "What good can a few honest men do? They'd better keep out of it." Her attitude is the attitude of many good women.

It is the pass-by-on-the-other-side attitude.
So long as the majority of honest men and women hold it, politics will remain dirty.

POLITICS AND SOCIAL BETTERMENT.

I have a friend who is much disturbed because her husband takes an interest in politics and has been giving considerable time and money to the effort to elect decent, honest men to municipal office.

She regards every evening thus spent as time stolen from her. She is jealous of every cent contributed to the cause.

Now if she were a selfish, self-centered woman, that would be comprehensible, but she is not. She is a kind-hearted woman who gives generously of both time and money to charity and Church work. It grieves her much because she cannot interest her husband in these directions.

She Doesn't Realize They Are Both Working for the Same Ends.
She does not realize that they are both working for the same ends, each in his or her own way, and that in fighting against his devotion to politics she is indirectly fighting against social betterment.

"Politics is a dirty game," she says, "What good can a few honest men do? They'd better keep out of it." Her attitude is the attitude of many good women.

It is the pass-by-on-the-other-side attitude.
So long as the majority of honest men and women hold it, politics will remain dirty.

Unfortunately, politics is not merely an interesting though crooked game.

We Have to Share in Results.
Politics, according to the dictionary, is the management of political parties, and as political parties govern the country, and as we have to live under a share in results whether we refuse to have a share in causes or not.

Much of our indifference comes from the fact that we do not realize how acutely bad government affects our every-day life.

The man who does not own property thinks he can laugh at government graft because he does not have any tax bill.

He does not realize that he is helping to fill the pockets of the political thieves in many indirect ways.

"They Don't Pay Any Taxes."
An old neighbor of ours who had a large property and no children used to rave when the town voted money for school buildings. "Half those people who vote for spending money so freely don't own their homes and don't pay a cent but their poll tax would send them to jail."

As if in paying their rent they didn't pay the taxes of the homes they lived in just as surely as he paid his. That's about as deeply as the average person thinks about government and politics.

Training a Husband

"You had better cut off the one button on this shirt and have it uniformly preserved," was the sarcastic exclamation of Morris Southy as he hung the offending garment on the bed and began pawing in the drawer for another.

"I don't know how that shirt got put away without being looked over," said Morris, his tone was very apologetic.

"I suppose it got put away as it always does. You speak as if it was a rare thing for a shirt to go unopened in this house," said Morris, feeling ill-tempered.

"Do be fair, Morris. If you take half as much pains to do all your work as I do to keep your clothes mended you—"

"Where are my socks?" interrupted the irate husband. "Let me find them." Marian reached a sigh. She laid the stockings on a chair and went for her mending basket. "I will have these buttons on before you are ready for the shirt," she said, sitting down to the task.

"Never mind, I have another one out to wear now. You may as well put them on, though; then they will be ready for next time." Morris was splashing at the washstand.

"Did you get my trousers pressed?" he asked while he used the towel vigorously.

"No." "Why not?" The face emerged from the towel to look at the offending woman.

"I have closed my pantiomir. No more orders received," laughed Marian.

"Those trousers are not fit to wear," grumbled Morris. "It's not a long job."

"I should think you could have pressed them then. You know just how rushed I am," grumbled the husband.

"I know that I am too busy to do all that is necessary for me to do, and I am going to try extra hard to do the necessary things by lopping off the unnecessary ones."

"Surely pressing trousers is necessary work," insisted Morris.

"Yes, it is necessary to be done, but it is not necessary for me to do it. I must find time to mend the children's clothes, to say nothing of my own. Marian rose and placed the folded shirt in the drawer. "That shirt is ready to wear now."

"Thanks. What did you use for a pressing cloth?" asked Morris, seizing the trousers and hurrying to the kitchen.

"Here it is. The ironing board is in the cellar way. I have been ironing so the patterns are hot." Morris was rattling board and chairs around in the kitchen, but Marian stayed in the front part of the house. Morris had ceased to call her from one part of the house to the other to wait on him, because he had learned that it did no good, but if she were near him he had a hundred things he wanted done.

"I had no idea it took so long to press a pair of trousers," Morris was worn with heat and hurry as he came into the bedroom. "No wonder you struck. I should not have asked you to do it so long had I known how much time it took."

"That is just why I stopped doing it."

WEATHER FORECAST.

Fair tonight and Friday; cool or Friday a cold northwest portion tonight; fresh to strong westerly winds.

GOOD ROADS.

Visitors to other parts of the country always exclaim on the condition of the roads, the evident care that is given both rural and urban highways and streets. Autoists who have traversed various parts of the continent both east and west, insist that other states are ahead of Wisconsin in the manner in which they look to the keep and construction of their main traveled thoroughfares.

Even adjacent cities pay far more attention to their streets than do the citizens of Janesville, and as for the county roads, with the exception of a few strips, they always appear to be in a condition of repair or needing repair. Perhaps the fault lies directly with the citizens themselves these conditions exist, but it seems improbable.

Good roads are an asset to a community. They are means of bringing trade to a city; they enable the farmer to haul heavy loads to the market and the traveler to visit various communities. Time was when the roads were the only means of communication between communities, except where water routes, artificial or natural, existed.

The steam and electric roads took their place as mediums of travel and the question of good roads is heard on all sides. Money expended for the construction of permanent highways is money made for every community. The quicker this fact is realized the sooner we will obtain good highways.

Taxpayers often become carried away that an old fashioned, cheap street is sufficient for their needs instead of a modern, up-to-date roadway that will stand the travel that it is forced to undergo. This class of citizens fails to realize that the road of today must be strong and durable and that the travel does not consist of light buggies, but heavy autos and auto trucks, and that the world has gone ahead of the horse and consequently the roads must keep pace with the advancement.

This may explain conditions of the roads in both Janesville and some parts of Rock county and it may be necessary for the authorities to take drastic action to convince the property-owners that experts know what they are talking about when they advocate cement or brick pavement for city travel.

FEW INDUCEMENTS.

There is widespread regret that it is difficult to persuade business and professional men to enter political life. Young men of superior attainments and position are constantly urged to enter political work. Yet still the great majority of men having superior ability and character shun politics.

Politics as a career is certainly not rewarding from the money viewpoint, for the average man who is strictly honest. Salaries are low. The man who speaks his own strictly independent convictions is considered "unavailable" by the managers. The ambitious aspirant must kow-tow to many little despots whom he really despises.

Of course where a man has very superior talents, he should be able to forge his way ahead in spite of horses and machines. He may be big enough to create his own organization, and appeal to the people for backing against the herd of self-seekers. But the man of average ability who is strictly sincere and honest finds the odds against him. This situation places a heavy responsibility for good government on successful business and professional men. The same gifts that gave them power in the business world would make them winning forces in politics. The excuse they give for keeping out of politics is that their business would suffer. Probably it would not suffer nearly so much as they think. And in many cases their prominence in politics would give them advertising of the most valuable kind.

Successful men are too intent on continued pursuit of money. Even if their business did suffer a little if they did public work, they are in no danger of want. They would never regret the time spent in civic service. It would be a life long satisfaction to feel that they had spared a few years from selfish aims in order to build up community life.

A ROLL OF HONOR.

There is a constant disposition among democrats to call attention to the vote by which the democratic majority in congress surrendered its rights as legislators and followed the cowardly course which their president had marked out in advance for the consideration of the eight hour law, falsely so-called.

In the senate, every republican member who was present—save only Mr. La Follette, who has often of late voted with the opposition—was recorded against the bill. Their names deserve to be remembered: Borah, Brady, Brandegee, McLean, Colt, Cummins, Kenyon, Curtis, Dillingham, Page, Du Pont, Gallinger, Gurnea, McCumber, Jones, Norris, Oliver, Penrose, Smith (of Michigan), Smoot, Sterling, Wadsworth, Warren, Weeks.

These names constitute a roll of honor. They show that the defense of the nation's institutions as well as the defense of the nation itself is regarded as a special charge of republican statesmen. The party that defended the nation against disunion can be relied upon to defend it against the new commission which contains all the dreams of a revolution. That these men were unable to succeed in their high purpose is due to their small number—made so by the dreadful error which the country committed at the polls four years ago. The country is about to go to the polls again. In the light of recent events it is now certain that the mistake of 1912 will not be repeated. The roll of honor will be longer in the next congress because there will be more republican senators there.

HORSE RACES.

A good deal of newspaper space is taken about now with the reports and summaries of the horse races. From one fair ground to another resounds the hoarse cries of the starter. The crowd watches the speeding figures with breathless interest.

Horse racing was probably at one time more entitled to be considered the national game than baseball. It will always interest those who like competition in skill and power. A swiftly moving horse has a beauty of stride and motion all its own. And the human element, the ability to direct and utilize the power of the horse to highest advantage, is an interesting problem in efficiency.

Horse racing has suffered from the feeling that there are too many crooks in the business. Also the prominence of betting has created the impression that many contests are not on the level. Race managers wish to attract public interest must punish every suspicion of dirty work. And the more they subordinate the money motive, the more they make it a competition in pure sport and skill, the better crowds they will draw.

WAR ON WASTE.

The Housekeepers' Alliance of Washington, D. C., is offering prizes to domestic servants for economies made in the kitchen. It is a wide open field of effort.

There is a common feeling among people that keep servants, that their wages are only about one-third of the cost of keeping them. The other two-thirds are what the servants eat and what they waste. Modern housemaids are largely aliens. They are accustomed to poverty and view America as the land where gold can be picked up in the streets. They think a constant dribble of waste is not noticed.

In the days when young American girls were willing to go out to do housework, prudent methods of housekeeping could be taught. Where a woman has to converse by signs or in "pidgin" English, instruction in economy seems a hopeless refinement. So people are flocking into hotels and apartment houses in cities, and many more women than formerly are doing their own housework.

According to the returning travelers, the big hotel's theory of how to make people comfortable is to per-mit dusky palms to be extended to them every minute in demands for tribute.

We can all get along very well without the Congressional Record, as it is not the right size to line the pantry shelves with, and papers are not used much under modern rugs.

Some of our citizens who take such an intelligent and patriotic interest in political developments may merely be trying to decide which side to bet on.

The claim of the theatrical producer that clean plays don't pay sounds much like the claim of the food manufacturer that he can't afford to make pure food.

The delay in opening many of the colleges is quite a blow to the cause of education as it must interfere with training the football teams.

No great suffering will be reported from the German crews interned in this country as long as the breweries keep running.

It costs a good many dollars to find out what the doctors don't know about infantile paralysis.

In labor troubles, like bridge whist, clubs as trumps don't count high. You can make a much better score with hearts.

The returning congressmen are not called to account so much for big appropriations as for failure to get their share of the pork.

The college presidents must wish they knew as much as the sophomores.

QUESTIONS ABOUT FOOD

Q.—I am informed that water used for drinking purposes is condemned when a large number of germs known as B. coli are found in it. I am also told that B. coli are harmless. Why should their presence in water be a reason for condemning it? T. C.

A. It is true that B. coli in small numbers are not injurious to the human system. It is only when they are present in the digestive tract in enormous quantities that they become harmful.

However, water containing B. coli is not usually condemned because of the reason of these germs to disease, but for the reason that they indicate the presence of other conditions that must be taken into consideration in passing judgment on the purity of water. They are a danger signal.

B. coli find a natural habitat in sewage. There is a direct relationship between the number of these bacteria and the extent of sewage pollution.

The bacteriologist has only to count the number of B. coli in a given volume of the water under examination, to know just how badly this water is contaminated with sewage. The value of the B. coli count lies in its reliability in registering the amount of filth present in water.

Notwithstanding these facts, milk dealers declare the presence of enormous quantities of B. coli in milk is no indication that such milk contains manure even when the manure can be seen.

Q.—How many calories of food should the average adult consume daily to keep in good health? Do not let the subject of calories disturb you, unless you happen to be a mechanical engineer buying coal for a manufacturing plant.

Food calories have never any body or anything of particular good. In fact, they have been known to result in much injury, to the extent even of killing dogs that were fed on foods of high caloric value from which the minerals and extractives had been previously removed by artificial means.

These poor animals actually starved to death, although they were given their fill of carbohydrates, proteins, and fats, the great caloric producers.

If there is any rule to be applied in eating it is to satisfy the appetite with foods containing all the nourishment that nature put into them. Such foods are whole wheat and whole rye bread, whole grain wild rice and cereal products, ripe fruits, and green vegetables. To these can be added fresh eggs, wholesome milk that has been pasteurized, and sound and healthy meat in small amounts. Foods which are of no earthly good are bread made from white flour, highly milled grain products such as polished rice, pearl barley, degenerated corn meal, and vegetables which have been robbed of their nourishing salts by ignorantly throwing away the waters in which they are boiled.

No rule of calories, however, carefully overcome the deficiencies of an unnatural diet. The wild beast of the woods knows nothing of calories, yet it thrives remarkably well. It eats only natural foods. None other is obtainable. Animals in captivity, kept on a diet similar to our own, develop many of the ills and agonies to which we are subject.

Calories cannot build red corpuscles. Iron can.

Calories cannot build bone and teeth. The lime and phosphorus alone can accomplish.

Calories do not neutralize the acidity of the blood and the tissues. This is the work of sodium and magnesium. Calories do not regulate the processes of secretion and elimination, but potassium does.

With rich blood, with teeth that can actually grind food, with the tissues in a healthy state, and the numerous glands performing their functions normally, the human organism is capable of availing itself of all energy bountied up in foods, technically expressed as heat units or calories, even though the average person never heard of a caloric.

FINISH OAKLAND AVE. BEFORE COLD WEATHER

PROPERTY OWNERS AT CITY HALL YESTERDAY LEARN THIS HIGHWAY TO BE COMPLETED SOON.

CITY WORK GOES ON

On Last Work of Afton Pike.—Ask Motorists and Others to Stay Off.—Bluff Street Better Now.

Taxpayers representing practically every foot of property along Oakland avenue and Forest Park boulevard stormed the city hall yesterday afternoon, there on a mission relative to the improvement on the two streets already well under way. The property owners desired to know the reason for the slow progress being made and whether or not the work was to be pushed to completion before cold weather.

They were informed by Mayor James A. Fathens, Commissioner of Street, Peter J. Goodman and Edward Conners, the contractors who have the work in charge, that the work on Oakland avenue would be finished completely before cold weather, but that Forest Park boulevard would not be completed until winter. This latter street will be in excellent passable condition during the winter, however.

Work of placing the final layer of granite on Oakland avenue progressed to the extent where the asphalt can be poured Monday. The asphalt is on the ground, and providing inclement weather holds off the work will commence next week. It will be pushed as rapidly as possible until the intersection with Forest Park boulevard is reached. The asphalt work will be completed by this point, and the contractors will devote their time to putting in the foundation stone on the boulevard.

Excavation work has been finished for some time and with the completion of Oakland avenue it will be possible to go right ahead with Forest Park boulevard.

Work on the Afton pike is progressing slowly, but when it is finished this road will rank with the best in the city. It is on the west bank of the river and the city limits connects with a long stretch just completed by the town of Rock. Considerable difficulty has been met in the building of this highway due to its location near the bluff and the great amount of traffic which it carries daily. As a result of the work at the present time Janesville motorists and others can drive over the road requested to use other roads as much as possible. Expectations are that when this road is completed it will be the most popular route between here and Beloit, due to the long stretch just completed by the town of Rock.

The last of the cement for a three foot sewer, replacing a bridge on Arch street, near the Milwaukee river, upper section, has been placed this morning. After this is finished it will be necessary to rebuild the approach and fill in on the side for sidewalks.

North Bluff street past the gas house to the city limits is in the best condition in years, although work on this street is far from finished. Repairs will be made on the bridge and at the present time Superintendent Goodman, after permitting the newly hauled in gravel to settle, is filling up the holes caused by the settling. Later the roller will be used here.

City Engineer Kerch at the present time is figuring on the plotting of "Lost Street," that twisting connection between the city and the town of Rock. When he has finished this work sidewalks will be laid, completing a stretch from Center avenue as far east as Franklin street.

FRACTURES TWO RIES IN FALL IN MANHOLE

Charles Bugge, Iocman, Thrown Into Hole When Bricks Give Way Near Coudge Excavation.

Charles Bugge, 603 South Academy street, an employee of the Consumers Pure Ice and Fuel company, suffered two fractured ribs this morning at the corner of Milwaukee and Academy streets, when he fell into the excavation made for a manhole for the Wisconsin Telephone company.

The man, removed to his home, where attending physicians told the family that it cannot be determined before tomorrow whether or not he suffered internal injuries.

An ice wagon and stepped from the back to take a cake into a store near the corner. According to report from the home this morning he stepped on the edge of the excavation, which was not guarded, the bricks in the pavement gave way and he fell heavily into the hole.

HYGIENE OF DRESS NEEDS ATTENTION OF MODERN WOMEN

Mrs. De La Cour in Lecture at Library Hall Urges "Better Preparedness" in Way of Sensible Apparel.

Women who would keep up to date in the matter of dress and fashions must make a study of their apparel from a standpoint of personal hygiene and health according to Mrs. De La Cour, who lectured Wednesday afternoon before a gathering of Janesville women at library hall. She stressed the tendency of society of fashion who go to the extreme in following foolish fads to injury not only of their figures but also of their health.

The subject of the lecture was "Better Preparedness," which is being secured through the vigorous campaign which American women, as organized club women, are making to make against disease and ill health. The speaker, in her beautiful gown of lavender chiffon and silk, was a vivid example of the request she was trying to inculcate. The hall with its new decorations of tan and cream, formed a fitting background to the charming speaker, and the attentive audience of ladies, each wearing the lovely pink rosebud given them of entrance into the room, tall jars of daisies and some attractive chairs on the platform, helped with the general effect.

While the audience was gathering Miss Marion Weirick rendered a series of musical selections which were listened to with interest.

The speaker played "America" as a prelude to the afternoon's discussion. Madame De La Cour is a woman of delightful personality and with the evident marks of education and culture. She is much interested in the work of women's clubs, and has appeared before many of the city and state organizations in her talks upon the subject of health.

In her lecture yesterday she said that America was the land of big things, and was leading in the most remarkable age in history. But with all the wonderful things achieved, the simple laws of hygiene were often ignored. She gave medical statistics to prove the prevalence of disease, and said that with all the conservation of labor, material and wealth of the country there had been little improvement in the conservation of health. But in this line of work the women's clubs must lead in a campaign for newer and better health conditions of the community.

Madame De La Cour was applauded as a happy medium between the old Puritan type, who thought only of cooking three meals a day and raising a large family, and the other extreme who thought of eating and drinking and dress and inspiration go hand in hand, she averred. But she deplored the misleading articles in fashion magazines, which she said were being pushed into popular favor.

In line with this argument, was the statement recently made that a smaller waist line and a higher cut corset was to be the newest thing. American womanhood, the speaker said, was too sensible and too well informed on the laws of hygiene to wear anything that was uncomfortable, and so a menace to her health.

United States board of health found that proper and well fitting corsets were a benefit to health, yet the reverse was true in regard to those not suited to the wearer. Many cases of illness have been traced directly to ill-fitting corsets.

Madame De La Cour said that she was visiting abroad and had been of having trained experts to do the fitting in this line of work. She said that the Ohio State Federation of Women's Clubs was to take up the matter at their next meeting of having those in charge of corsetry take special training for the work and have a diploma showing their proficiency in that line the same as is required of nurses and doctors.

Janesville women are indebted to The Golden Eagle for bringing Mme. De La Cour to this city for the inspiring lecture.

ANOTHER ACCIDENT COMES OF PARKING CARS ON MAIN ST.

Congested Curbing, Lined with Machines, Bring Two Hundred Dollar Loss to Sayles' Windows.

Milwaukee-Main streets omnipresent traffic congestion caused another accident yesterday. Mrs. E. G. Sayles, a commercial traveler, 622 Milton avenue, drove her automobile up a fourteen inch perpendicular rise, from the street to the sidewalk and having entered the front of the W. P. Sayles jewelry store. The lamps of the machine went through the south window and the impact also broke the north window.

Automobiles parked at the street curbing, street cars meeting at the corner, the ordinary traffic of the street, and Mrs. Sayles' mistake in having the engine in first speed rather than in neutral, as the occasion demanded, proved a bad combination. She had had her car parked at the curbing in front of the jewelry store, together with other machines. The space was not sufficient to turn and she backed out, only to have to stop and come forward again when a trolley car moved in her path. It was when she started forward that she momentarily lost control of the car and the engine being in first speed drove it up the curb and across the sidewalk.

Thomas G. Murphy, advertising manager of the Gazette, jumped a mile of time to escape being squeezed between the store and the car and dangerously cut by the window glass. Luckily Mr. Murphy was the only person who happened to be in front of the store at that time.

The damage will total close to two hundred dollars. Each plate of glass is about seven feet square and in some cases, damage to goods on display, was twenty or twenty-five dollars.

The accident yesterday to the front of Mr. Sayles' store, was the second of a series of similar occurrences, on each occasion the jewelry house window glass being broken, although in previous locations, coincident with the damage to the window, no damage to the goods on display occurred.

Another time, when a horse was driven down West Milwaukee street, ran into the corner of the old store at South River and Milwaukee streets. On another occasion a farmer driving a horse-drawn sleigh lost control of his team. They ran right into the store, through the double doors. It was necessary to turn one horse around within the store, and the other was led out.

Another team got away on River street and dashed towards Milwaukee street, went into the side window, and caused a loss of $200.00 in damage to the store.

SOX, BATTING HARD TROUNCE ATHLETICS

Take Second Game of Series and Go Into Second Place When Tigers Lose to Boston.

Mauling three Philadelphia pitchers for fourteen hits, the White Sox defeated the Macks 8 to 7 yesterday in the second game of the series, and white Boston was administering another defeat to the Tigers, the Rowlands went into second place. They are still a game and a half behind Boston, but lead Detroit half a game and it appears that here they will remain as only a miracle will make possible Boston's dropping the lead.

The three leaders met again today as yesterday. Friday, however, the Yankees comes to Chicago, the Tigers meet Washington and Cleveland to meet the Cariggins. According to the dope the tough rub will come after the east-west series are over and Boston returns to its own section with seven games to play against New York and Philadelphia. The White Sox and Tigers will have but four left, with Cleveland and St. Louis, respectively. The additional three games which Boston will have with the Macks after the west has finished its schedule, will mean a big advantage for the present leaders, providing they can maintain the speed at which they are now traveling.

News Notes

From Movieland

By DAISY DEAN.

At the age of fourteen Robert Harrow forces was an errand boy at a studio in New York. He was not born to be just an errand boy, however, as David Griffith, then a director with the company, discovered him. He set the young man in question to playing juvenile leads. As time went on under the able direction of one of filmland's greatest directors he developed into one of the most promising young actors of the screen. He plays most of the time opposite Mae Marsh. He is a good looking chap and is not married.

TOO MUCH FOR SIR HERBERT.
 Sir Herbert Tree made one moving picture before he opened his Broadway season. His contract called for several other pictures. For some reason, possibly best known to the box office, the producers were not anxious to have him complete his contract.

After the Broadway season, however, Sir Herbert went to Los Angeles and reported for duty. The film executives, according to the story, tacitly acquiesced, but you are under contract to do a picture for us," they are reported to have said. "Very well, we have selected one for you called 'The Old Folks at Home.' In it you play a negro and black up."

After Sir Herbert had been revived, it is said to have been comparatively easy for the film office to arrange a compromise by which his contract was canceled.

PIE SLINGING TOO MUCH.
 Eddie Foy met much the same fate as Sir Herbert, according to another story from the Pacific coast. For some reason Foy, too, might have canceled his contract without breaking the producers' hearts. And so they cast him in a picture in which he was to be assaulted in the face by a custard pie as a grand climax. Foy stood up for it manfully, it is related, but when the director, who is understood to have been acting under instructions, declared that the scene was unsatisfactory and retook it again and again, Foy finally succumbed at the ninety-second pie.

CLEO MADISON'S SISTER.
 Cleo Madison's invalid sister, Helen, after a trying time at the hospital with appendicitis, has been pronounced out of danger and returned home. This sister, who has been an invalid for eight years, is the especial care and joy of Cleo's life. In spite of her affliction, Helen is of such a bright and happy disposition that she has earned the nickname of "Sunshine" and as such she is better known.

A film company is making a one-reel film entitled "The Trump Card," for the New York state department of health on a proposed crusade against impure milk.

NEW MANAGEMENT AT MYERS THEATRE

Playhouse Has Been Remodeled Into a Thing of Beauty—Only High Class Attractions to be Offered.

The theatrical season will formally open next Sunday evening at Myers Theatre which is now under new management, the building having been leased by Jos. M. Bransky of Chicago, who will also assume the management of the business.

Mr. Bransky has spent a considerable sum of money in remodeling and redecorating the interior of the building until now it is a theatre of which the city may well be proud. The lobby has undergone alteration and redecoration until it is now difficult to recognize it as Myers Theatre lobby. A mosaic tile floor has been laid, the walls have been refinished, expensive chandeliers have been installed to light the lobby. French doors open from the lobby into the theatre.

The interior of the theatre proper is now finished in the harmonious colors of old rose and ivory. The softening effect of the amber lights is most pleasing to the eye and with other minor improvements it is now a theatre that will appeal to nearly everyone.

Another innovation that will be in force is the corps of young women ushers who will conduct the patrons to their respective seats.

It is planned at a later date to book the high class vaudeville acts from the best circuits, announcement of which will be made in the Gazette columns.

Mr. Bransky, in announcing the policy of the house, has stated that the only best class of attractions would be put on and that the prices charged would be in accordance with the excellence of the productions.

As a theatrical man, Mr. Bransky comes most highly recommended from Chicago where he has been associated with the leading theatres for a number of years. Until coming to Janesville he has been actively connected with the La Salle and Colonial theatres in the capacity of manager.

For the formal opening attraction Mr. Bransky has secured the eminent Irish actor-singer, Mr. Fiske O'Hara, in an entirely new attraction.

As a means of disposing of your real estate, the little want ads are sure winners.

HANOVER

Hanover—Sept. 21.—On Sunday, September 24, the annual Mission Festival will be celebrated at the Hanover church with three special services. The morning service at ten o'clock will be in German; Rev. F. L. Gehrs of Arlington Heights, Illinois, will deliver the sermon, and Henry Ebeling, baritone soloist from Milwaukee, will sing two solos. The afternoon service at half past two will be conducted in English by the Rev. L. Quebert of Clinton; there will also be special hymns by Mr. Ebeling. In the evening at eight o'clock the Rev. Gehrs will deliver a lecture in English on "Our Negro Mission in the South." There will be special music at this service, baritone solos, duets and quartet music. A special offering for missions will be taken at each service. The Sunday school at half past eleven will also take up a special collection for the benefit of the mission in India. No hymn books will be necessary as we have special booklets for the occasion. Everyone is cordially invited to worship with us. P. Felten, pastor.

NOTED OSHKOSH WOMAN IS DEAD; AGED SEVENTY-FOUR

Oshkosh, Sept. 21.—Miss Helen Maria Follette, a pioneer resident, is dead, at the age of seventy-four years. Her mother, the late Mrs. Thos. A. Follette, was an immediate relative of Edward Everett, noted American orator and statesman. Her father was third mayor of Oshkosh, coming here from New York in 1850. The deceased taught school here in an early day.

DISTINCTIVELY NEW FALL SUITS

The Autumn garments are wonderfully beautiful expressions of style fancy—they are enriched with furs and otherwise made into royally gorgeous or demurely quiet expressions of becoming individuality for the woman of fashion.

Our display presents a wonderful selection of copies and adaptations of Paris models.

We invite You to inspect These Models

Priced at $15 to $65.

Coats for Fall and Winter

The Autumn Coats are voluminous yet graceful and never so fascinating. Our selections are from original models and authentic reproductions.

Made up in Bolivias, Wool, Plush, Dovotine, Bellfir Broadcloths, Velour and Plush.

Particular charming is the long full flaring model with the deep collars. Much fur is used for trimming in many models.

A Beautiful Showing of Furs

Beautiful Sets as well as separate scarf and muffs.

Red Fox, Mole Skin, Hudson Seal, Martin Raccoon and Gray Fox are the favored furs this season.

In spite of high prices popular prices prevail at this store.

Like a friendly word when you're blue—they satisfy!

You know, days when nothing seems to go right—we all have them. And then, all of a sudden, a friend's cheer-up voice comes over the 'phone—"how about the theatre with me tonight?" It does brighten a man up—it satisfies! That's what Chesterfields do for your smoking—they satisfy!

And still, Chesterfields are mild!

This is entirely new cigarette delight—a cigarette that satisfies, and yet is mild! Smokers have found that out.

And the reason no other cigarette can offer you this new enjoyment is because no cigarette maker can copy the Chesterfield blend!

Try a package of Chesterfields today.
